Keys to Making Effective Comments:

- Establish your authority to comment, whether it is as a concern citizen, representative of an interest group, or an expert.
- Focus your comments on reasonable alternatives and potential environmental issues.
- Submit comments that are clear, concise, and relevant to the project.
- Provide constructive solutions with documentation or resources to support your comments or recommendations.
- Substantive comments are most effective and are those that suggest analysis, methodologies, or provide information for study in the Draft EIS; or that identify potential impacts, reasonable alternatives, or feasible mitigation.
- Non-substantive comments are those that express a conclusion, an opinion, a vote for or against the proposed action or a particular alternative, or otherwise state a personal preference or opinion.
- Let us know what environmental and community factors you consider important for analysis in the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS).
- During scoping, your comment will be considered for environmental analysis and may be used to modify the project. Although comments will be accepted throughout the analysis process, input must be received by June 14, 2024, to ensure inclusion in the Draft EIS.
